

WCSN

*The World Service of
The Christian Science Monitor*

WCSN calling.

Thank you for tuning in to The World Service of The Christian Science Monitor.

This confirms you heard WCSN transmitting from Scotts Corners, Maine, U.S.A., over a 500 kw transmitter with a dipole curtain antenna.

As a service to our listeners, we provide a program guide which includes articles for the newcomer to shortwave as well as for the experienced DX'er. We have added your name to our mailing list. If you do not wish to receive the guide, please write: Program Guide, World Service, P.O. Box 527, Boston, MA 02117 U.S.A.

We warmly invite you to keep listening to our programming. You will be kept fully informed about the global issues of the day as they happen—brought to you by the independent, international news-gathering organization, The Christian Science Monitor.®

"First the blade, then the ear, then the full grain in the ear."®

Photo: Christian Science Center, Boston, Massachusetts, U.S.A.

Garry:

Congratulations
and Thank' you for being the first person to report reception of WCSN's first broadcast on March 30, 1987
J.P.

The Christian Science Publishing Society

Office of the Manager

July 9, 1987

Mr. Gerry Dexter
RR 4 Box 110
Lake Geneva WI 53147

Dear Mr. Dexter:

Well, we've certainly taken our time to let you know that you were the first to acknowledge our broadcasts! In speaking with Mark Stacey last week, we discovered that you were the first person to call the station in Scotts Corners with a reception report. So now, belatedly, we'd like to send you a personalized courtesy card in recognition of that fact.

We invite you to continue listening to The World Service of The Christian Science Monitor and The Herald of Christian Science. And please let us know what you are thinking about our programming.

Mark may have mentioned to you our intention to have a regular DXer column in the Program Guide once we are truly up and running. Until then, all questions you might have may be directed to this office for reply.

Thank you for your patience and we value your continued support.

Sincerely,

John Parrott, Director
Office of Communication and Information

Enclosure:

Courtesy card